Residing on the fringes of the paranormal are these black eyed kids. B.E.K.S. Are they a diabolical threat or the stuff of urban legend. "Just let us in, this won't take long." Strange children are appearing around the world. Attired in old fashioned clothing, their skin is pale and their mannerisms awkward. Their most startling trait however, is their solid black eyes. They are knocking on doors and rapping on windows. Their voices are monotone and demanding and they have one simple request: They want to come in.

The book that sets the standard for everything to follow.

By S. O'Toole

Every so often you chance upon a book that, even as someone who's read hundreds of books on the paranormal, really opens your eyes and makes you think. I'm jaded, I'll admit. I thought the Black Eyed Children were the result of an internet hoax that originated in the 1990's but Weatherly's book made me rethink all that. While a hoax is certainly still a possibility, the evidence here gives me pause.

Weatherly is a careful, thorough researcher who has compiled enough stories to suggest there may be something more than meets the eye going on with these mysteries entities and he lays out his findings and evidence with care.

The result a fascinating book that, if it doesn't convince you, will scare the daylights out of you. It's a remarkable subject and, after reading this book, one has to wonder if the Black Eyed Children aren't something real. In any case, this is the book all others will have to be judged by. Weatherly has set the bar very high. Oh, and you can buy it for $22 at his website [...]instead of paying these overblown prices.

Anyone who would pay $2000.00 for a paperback is NUTS! Ever hear of a library? OR, you can get it for $22.00 at leprechaun press.com. Give it a try especially before dropping a totally ridiculous amount of money! Who would do that anyway? Good Grief!
